POPULATION ACT,

11 GEO. IV. c. 30.

STATEMENT of progress in the Inquiry regarding the Occupation of families and persons, and the duration of Life.

THE FOURTH ENUMERATION of the Population of Great Britain having been carried into effect in May 1831, a comparative account of the Result of similar national enquiries at equal intervals of Ten Years (1801, 1811, 1821 and 1831) is now laid before Parliament. Such an extended view affords increasing scope for contemplation and for deductions not less useful prospectively, than the knowledge of our existing Population; the consideration of which is found by experience to enter more or less into all the combinations of human action, whether general or particular, legislative, financial, military, or social.

The enquiry instituted by the four several Acts of Parliament, was similar in so far as it sought to ascertain the number of Houses and of Persons; but the Acts of 1811 and 1821 differed from that of 1801 in asking the Occupation of Families instead of that of Persons; which question had entirely failed, from the impossibility of deciding whether females of the family, children, and servants were to be classed as if of no occupation, or of the occupation of the adult males of the family. The amended enquiry of 1811 and 1821 succeeded so far as to establish that about one-third (thirty-five in a hundred in 1811, thirty-three in a hundred in 1821) of the Population of Great Britain are employed in Agriculture; rather less than one-half (forty-five in a hundred in 1811, forty-six in a hundred in 1821) in Trade, Manufacture, and Commerce, leaving to the third or miscellaneous class one-fifth (twenty or twenty-one in a hundred) of the Aggregate Population.

But the often recurring and unanswerable doubt, as to what is to be deemed a family?—has caused a further alteration in the mode of this enquiry, which now applies not to families, but to Males who have arrived at Twenty Years of Age, their occupations being then usually settled for life:—and the particular age of Twenty recommends itself further as furnishing to a certain extent, a ready test to the Magistrates (before whom the Returns were authenticated) of the accuracy of the enumerator, one half of the existing Male population being thus included in the enquiry, supposing the ages of Six Millions of Males to have been duly ascertained in the enumeration of 1821.

Males under
Twenty years old,
3,072,392;
upwards of
Twenty years old,

The Agricultural Class is distinguished (by the Seventh Question) into Occupiers of land who employ Labourers,—Occupiers who do not employ Labourers,—and Agricultural Labourers; the two first of those distinctions being deemed more generally illustrative of the grade and condition of those under whose care the soil is cultivated, than the number of Acres occupied, or the amount of Rental; the first of these two facts affording no information whatever, considering the different amount of Capital invested in the occupation of Ten Acres of Garden ground or Nursery, and the same area of woodland or rough pasture. Whether the Amount of Rental paid, or the annual value of House or Land occupied by the Proprietor, be a fit question, is doubtful; certainly it would not be answered so as to afford a genuine result.

The number of the Manufacturing Class is asked by the Eighth Question, and the species of Manufacture in every place is asked by the Thirteenth Question.

The Class formed by those employed in Retail Trade and Handicraft (as described in the Ninth Question) undergoes sub-division in detail, an explanation and example of which will be given in a subsequent part of this Statement.

Persons of independent income, Capitalists, Professional men, and, generally speaking, those who do not labour with their hands, are included in the Tenth Question; all Labourers, other than agricultural, are included in the Eleventh Question; and the Twelfth Question embraces all those not described in any of the preceding Questions [7—12] which apply to Males of Twenty years of age.

To this there is one exception, as to domestic Male Servants, who are distinguished as of Twenty years old, and under that age; Female Servants, of whatever age, have been distinctly enumerated.

The Question of the Age of persons, which succeeded beyond expectation in 1821, has not been repeated in 1831, not only as imposing too much labour in combination with the above described enquiries, but as unnecessary and inconclusive at an interval of no more than Ten Years.

Moreover the Ages of the Living are much connected with the Ages of persons at the time of their death; and considering the vast property dependent on the probable duration of life, this kind of knowledge is highly important, and is attainable to a great extent in consequence of the Parish-Register Act of 1812, which during Eighteen complete Years, has now produced an account of the ages of Four Millions of the deceased. To extract from the entries in Parish Registers such an account, was an extensive labour committed to the charge of the Clergy, and in most places performed by themselves personally. To arrange these accounts into totals for each Year and for every age since 1812, will require time and assiduous labour; but encouraged in its progress by the satisfaction of working on materials more ample than any hitherto subjected to investigation.

Many other results are obtainable from the Parish Registers, which, in the aggregate, form a vast national record. The earliest of them date from the establishment of the Church of England, Injunctions to that effect having been issued by Cromwell (Henry's Vice-gerent for ecclesiastical jurisdiction) in 1538; these were repeated in the beginning of the Reign of Elizabeth, who also appointed a protestation to be made by the Clergy, in which, among other things, they promised to keep Parish Register Books in the proper manner.

The Canons of the Church of England now in force, date their authority from the beginning of the Reign of James I. (A. D. 1603.) One of these prescribes minutely in what manner entries are to be made in the Parish Register; herein reciting the Injunction of 1538, and further ordering an attested Copy of the Register of each successive year to be delivered in, and preserved in the Bishop's Registry.

This Canon contains also a retrospective clause, appointing that the antient Registers as far as they could be procured, (but especially from the commencement of the Reign of Elizabeth) should be copied into a Parchment Book, to be provided by every Parish. This wise regulation appears to have been carried into full effect, so that the early Parish Register Books now extant are usually transcripts, commencing with that Queen's Reign, a few of them earlier, even as far back as the date of the original injunction.

By the Parish-Register Act of 1812 an attempt was made to ascertain the dates of Registers extant in every Parish; but the operation of that Act was incompetent to the attainment of this object; wherefore occasion is now taken to renew the attempt by a question, to which answer is optional on the part of the Clergy; but which, through their readiness to furnish requisite information of all the Register Books in their custody, promises a satisfactory result.

Thus much it has been necessary to say, introductory to the subsequent statements of progress in the several departments of enquiry under the Population Act.

THE Volume now laid before Parliament for present use, includes nothing more of the Returns under the Population Act of 1830 than the Enumeration of persons; which Returns are not arranged, as heretofore, according to the Hundreds and similar Divisions of the several Counties; instead of which, the Parishes are placed alphabetically in each County, as the order most convenient for ready reference when the single fact of Population is in question. In searching for any place alphabetically, the enquirer should recollect that the mode of spelling the names of places is somewhat arbitrary and irregular, and pursue his search accordingly, in case of failure in his first attempt. Places of double name create a further difficulty, and an uncertainty whether the distinctive epithet or the substantive name appears in the Alphabet order, may create a delay not tedious, but often unavoidable.

For all purposes, other than ready reference to individual places, the accustomed arrangement of Parishes according to Hundreds and similar divisions, is more instructive, is indeed indispensable; and two Acts of Parliament [9 Geo. IV. c. 43, and 10 Geo. IV. c. 46.] have recently enabled Justices of the Peace to rectify inconvenient limits of Jurisdiction, but not to embrace Extra-parochial places within their jurisdiction; and the Inhabitants of these privileged spots, in favour of whom the Poor are relieved, Roads and Bridges are maintained, public Justice and police are kept in action, by the personal services and at the expense of others,—daily increase in number, in proportion as those public duties become progressively more onerous, and this effectual manner of evading them becomes more generally known.

In most of the Southern Counties, where the early settlement and long tenure of the Saxons multiplied Hundreds and Liberties to an inconvenient amount, the Magistrates have taken advantage of the above Acts, so as to arrange convenient districts for each Petty-Sessions, without superseding (further than was indispensable) the limits of the now obsolete Hundred Courts.

The Alphabetical arrangement of Parishes is well adapted for displaying the Comparative Amount of Population in 1801, 1811, 1821, and 1831; and involves in its formation a severe scrutiny of defaulting places in former Enumerations; which scrutiny would be complete, were it possible in all cases to ascribe the Population accurately; but from the occasional diversity of name and description, and from the unmentioned junction or separation of places in the several Enumerations, it is not certain that the present investigation has been in every instance successful, although no labour has been spared in the endeavour to attain to accuracy. The number of places defaulting in 1801 may be taken at 264; and the defective Population may be estimated at 73,000, allowing for the probable increase since 1801:—the defaulting places in 1811 at 104, and the then defective Population may be estimated at 23,000, allowing for the increase since 1811. In 1821, twenty-five places made default, of which the then Population is estimated at 10,500.

The Annual Value of Real property having been ascertained for the purpose of taxation in 1815, (midway in the Thirty Years) the first column is assigned to this sort of information, which, as far as regards England, is copied from the Poor Rate Return Volume of that Year, which was compiled from the Property Tax Assessments; and now appears, for the first time, as regarding Scotland, drawn from a source of equal authenticity. In cases where the Population; of a place is for any reason divided in entry, the entire annual value is usually ascribed to the largest entry of Population; and in some instances the junction or separation of Townships in the same Parish, requires local knowledge for the due apportionment of the Annual Value. A severe Tax cannot be enforced to the utmost, so that land is not much less in annual value than the amount of Assessment in 1815: Houses have certainly increased in value since that time; but such unavoidable inaccuracy will not influence the experienced mind to reject or even to discountenance approximations to useful knowledge, great part of which must always consist of imperfect information; if the valuation of 1815 approaches within a Tenth, or even a Fifth part of the truth, its usefulness (statistically speaking) cannot reasonably be disputed. So if the Area of every Parish in England could be assigned to it within the same limits of approximation, an accession of useful knowledge could not but accrue; and an attempt is now in progress, which, if successful, will furnish an additional column in the larger Abstract hereafter to be laid before Parliament, and which must embrace all the information obtained under the Population Act of 1830.

At the end of each County, in this Volume, is inserted the Per centage Rate of Increase of the Population in the Three decennial periods, of which the following SUMMARY affords the largest example:

The Population of the Isle of Man has increased from 40,081 in 1821, to 40,985 in 1831; Jersey from 28,600 in 1821, to 36,582 in 1831. The Returns from Guernsey have not yet been received.

It has already been stated, that the Population Act of 1830 institutes an enquiry into the various occupations of the present generation; but this, be it remembered, is purely additional to the enquiries made under the Population Acts of 1810 and 1820, so that the power of comparison remains inviolate. How far a minute analysis of social life in Great Britain in the Year 1831, may be useful to statistical enquirers, experience only can demonstrate; the technical difficulty of precise distinction between Manufacture and the Handicraft (the Eight and Ninth Questions) has produced many questions, to which answer has been made, That he who works for the consumer of an article in the place where both parties reside, is to be deemed Handicraft; he who works for an intermediate dealer (for what may be called export) is a Manufacturer. But this kind of doubt is too unfrequent to produce any material uncertainty in the aggregate.

The following Example of a Return with all its details will best exhibit what is to be expected, when the same process shall have produced similar Result as to the Counties and other large Towns in Great Britain. The ancient City of York has been selected, not only as a fit example of a provincial Capital, but as including its Ainstey, or own peculiar jurisdiction, which affords opportunity of also exhibiting particulars of the rural population of Thirty-five Villages adjacent to the City, Southward and Westward. In some places the enquiry regarding Male Servants, although confined (by the Thirteenth Question) to such as are taxed or taxable as Servants, has been more extensively understood than was intended at the expense of other classes; but the comparative number of such Servants is small as compared to the number of other classes, and the error is usually open to detection. Indeed the error may not be so general as the casual inspection of several Returns from agricultural districts seemed to indicate; certainly it has not taken place in the City of York and its Ainstey, the Records of the Tax Office proving that the actual number of Servants there taxed as Domestic Servants, rather exceeds the number returned as such in answer to the Thirteenth Question of the Population Schedule.

It is to be understood, that in the larger Abstract, a Note will be appended to the City of York Returns, stating that “the 228 persons returned as being employed in Manufacture are chiefly employed in making Linen;” and that a small Parish not having specified the Retail Trades and Handicraft, a deficiency of 53 persons occurs in the SPECIFICATION of Trades in the City.

The Specification or Formula delivered to the Enumerators contained 100 Species of Trade or Handicraft. In the City of York, no more than Two of these were without a single instance, and 25 Species being added, the result is 123; so that a just medium seems to have been observed. In the Ainstey only 33 Species of Trade or Handicraft found instances for entry.

THE most striking results of a general Enumeration are those which place great towns in comparison with each other; and as the Population of the Metropolis cannot elsewhere be exhibited in one view, from the circumstance of its extending into two Counties, this opportunity is taken, of giving such a description of its several parts as may be necessary for the information of foreigners, and not unacceptable to the inhabitants of the British Empire.

1. LONDON WITHIN THE WALLS is the parent City around which the Metropolis has spread itself in all directions. No place in Great Britain can have been an earlier resort of Commerce, London being authentically named as a celebrated Mart (1) before the Romans had subdued the natives into steady obedience. The situation of London was no doubt selected as at the head of a navigable tide-way, the deep water ceasing at London Bridge, and the River not being navigable for sea-borne vessels over the Vauxhall shoal. London is thus placed fifty Miles inland; an advantage the more striking, as although England is not extensive enough to produce a large River, such access of shipping is unequalled (except perhaps by the Elbe) on the Continent of Europe. This situation has always secured to the Merchants of London the Supply and the Export of a territory not less than 300 Miles in circumference; and the superior power of assortment at such an emporium, has always enlarged their commerce in a greater proportion than this fortunate position naturally indicates. The unembanked Thames must have appeared as an Estuary of some breadth, in which the same quantity of tidal water, could have had comparatively little effect, and the Hill of moderate acclivity on which the City of London within the Walls is placed, must have been more remarkable and conspicuous than at present. (2) From the Eastern Ascent at Tower Hill to the Western Descent at Ludgate Hill, its extent exceeds an English Mile (3) by one quarter part, and the Walls extend to the Northward so as to inclose a space

(1) Tacitus, Ann. Lib. 14. Londinium, cognomento quidem Coloniae non insignè, sed copiâ negotiatorum et commentum maxime celebre. [A.D. 61.]

(2) After it became known that Low-water mark at Alloa, (thirty miles further up the Firth of Forth than Leith, the Port of Edinburgh) was actually many feet higher than the High-water mark at Leith, the action of the tide in Estuaries might have been expected to attract notice, especially as the Estuary of the Severn furnishes a striking instance of the up-hill rush of the Tidal wave in a narrowed channel. But the practical knowledge of the Tides has hitherto advanced so little, that a Circular Letter of Instructions to the several Custom House Officers stationed around the Coast of Great Britain, would produce more information in three months than is at present accessible. A rare instance of valuable knowledge within our reach, hitherto unaccountably slighted in a nation justly priding itself on the higher branches of nautical Science.

(3) The length of the English Mile is as Six to Seven, compared with the Geographical Mile, and its Area being exactly as Three to Four of the Area of the Square Geographical Mile, it is readily reducible to the only Measure which is universal in the civilized world.

space more than Three Miles in circuit, about 370 Acres in Area. The Walls of London are of Roman foundation, probably of the age of Constantius Chlorus, [A. D. 400.] and have been traced through the enlarged Tower of London (a Norman Fortress) behind the Minories to Ald-gate; behind Hounds-ditch (the ancient Moat) to Bishops-gate; and along London Wall to Cripple-gate, the greatest distance from the River Thames. Thence to Alders-gate, New-gate, (4) Lud-gate, and Blackfriars Bridge, where now is concealed Fleet Ditch, the Western defence of the City. The Population crowded within the Walls for the sake of security, would now be justly deemed excessive, as was proved by frequent pestilence and an unusual rate of mortality at all times; but the great Fire which consumed more than the entire City within the Walls in the year 1666, seems to have precluded pestilence in the renovated City.

In the beginning of the last Century the Population was not much less than 140,000, as proved by deduction from the Parish Registers; and the Annual Mortality was as one to Twenty of that Population. Fortunately for the health of the Citizens, space is become more valuable for Warehouses than for human habitation, so that the Population of the City within the Walls is diminished to 55,778, and the rate of Mortality to less than one in Forty.

2. The City of LONDON without the Walls has been acquired by successive Royal grants of Jurisdiction; the main part of it extends westward to Temple-Bar, constituting the best-built part of the Town in the Reigns of the Plantagenets. The space occupied by the City without the Walls, is more than 230 acres; its appearance on the Map has been lessened by colouring the great breadth of the City Moat, which (for example) occupied the space between Houndsditch and Camomile-Street, Devis-Marks, and Duke's-Place,—the Line of the City Wall; and a similar space West of the Minories, extending to the Street in front of the Crescent and of America Square. Throughout its circuit this Moat is said to have been Two hundred feet wide, abounding with Fish. The Population of this portion of the Metropolis was about 69,000 at the beginning of the last Century, it now amounts to 66,209.

3. The Borough of SOUTHWARK on the South side of the River Thames is next to be described. Its origin cannot but be ascribed to the Ferry, which in Roman times connected London with the Military Road to Dover. The Roman Roads were all measured from London Stone, (5) still extant in Cannon-Street, whence the Road passed immediately down to the Water-Gate (6) of the City, the Ferry crossing to the end of a Causeway (now Bank-end) pointing to St. George's Church, from whence the Line of Roman Road is still in use. The first mention of Southwark is supposed to date from A. D. 1052; but a remarkable event in the year 1008 proves its existence at that time, and shows the origin of its name as a Military work. Sweyn the Danish Invader who had expelled King Ethelred from England died in the preceding year; whereupon Ethelred obtained the aid of Olaf, Chieftain of a band of Northern Adventurers, and attacked the Danes, then in possession of London. But Olaf's fleet was of little use unless it could pass the fortified Bridge, then of wood, and wide enough for the passage of two Carriages. The Bridge was defended at its South end by a Military work placed in what the Historian calls the great Emporium of Southwark.

(4) Newgate was called New, because it was rebuilt in the time of Henry V. Previously it was called Chamberlain's Gate, the Chamberlain's Office (of City Revenue and Expenditure) being probably held there. This Gate cannot but have been one of the antient Gates of the City, the Roman Watling Street passing along Newgate Street, Holborn, and Oxford Street to Tyburn, where it turns N.W. to St. Alban's.

(5) No defect in the Metropolis is more inconvenient than the want of such a Stone; the various Roads from London being now measured from Ten or Eleven different places, Two, Three, and even Four Miles distant from each other. The Catalogue is curious; Hyde Park Corner, and Whitechapel Church; the Surrey side of London Bridge, and of Westminster Bridge; Shoreditch Church, Tyburn Turnpike; Holborn Bars (long since removed); "The place where St. Giles's Pound formerly stood"; "The place where Hicks's Hall formerly stood"; the Standard in Cornhill (of which no other tradition remains, its exact site being unknown); and the "Stones' end in the Borough," which moves with the extension of the Pavement. Thus the actual distance of any place cannot be known without minute inquiry, and local knowledge of London. The easy remedy consists in adopting the Mileage of the Post-Office, when it shall have been re-measured from the new site of that Office, the Frontage of which grand centre of communication could not be more appropriately adorned, than by an Obelisk which would become a London Stone, in imitation of that which stood in the Forum of antient Rome. The Vicinity of St. Paul's, the most conspicuous object in London, recommends the new Post-Office especially for this purpose; and Turnpike Road Trustees would not refuse to accommodate to it their Mile-Stones, under the direction of the Road-Surveyor of the Post-Office.

The Specification or Formula delivered to the Enumerators contained 100 Species of Trade or Handicraft. In the City of York, no more than Two of these were without a single instance, and 25 Species being added, the result is 123; so that a just medium seems to have been observed. In the Ainstey only 33 Species of Trade or Handicraft found instances for entry.

THE most striking results of a general Enumeration are those which place great towns in comparison with each other; and as the Population of the Metropolis cannot elsewhere be exhibited in one view, from the circumstance of its extending into two Counties, this opportunity is taken, of giving such a description of its several parts as may be necessary for the information of foreigners, and not unacceptable to the inhabitants of the British Empire.

1. LONDON WITHIN THE WALLS is the parent City around which the Metropolis has spread itself in all directions. No place in Great Britain can have been an earlier resort of Commerce, London being authentically named as a celebrated Mart (1) before the Romans had subdued the natives into steady obedience. The situation of London was no doubt selected as at the head of a navigable tide-way, the deep water ceasing at London Bridge, and the River not being navigable for sea-borne vessels over the Vauxhall shoal. London is thus placed fifty Miles inland; an advantage the more striking, as although England is not extensive enough to produce a large River, such access of shipping is unequalled (except perhaps by the Elbe) on the Continent of Europe. This situation has always secured to the Merchants of London the Supply and the Export of a territory not less than 300 Miles in circumference; and the superior power of assortment at such an emporium, has always enlarged their commerce in a greater proportion than this fortunate position naturally indicates. The unembanked Thames must have appeared as an Estuary of some breadth, in which the same quantity of tidal water, could have had comparatively little effect, and the Hill of moderate acclivity on which the City of London within the Walls is placed, must have been more remarkable and conspicuous than at present. (2) From the Eastern Ascent at Tower Hill to the Western Descent at Ludgate Hill, its extent exceeds an English Mile (3) by one quarter part, and the Walls extend to the Northward so as to inclose a space

(1) Tacitus, Ann. Lib. 14. Londinium, cognomento quidem Coloniae non insigne, sed copiâ negotiatorum et commentum maxime celebre. [A.D. 61.]

(2) After it became known that Low-water mark at Alloa, (thirty miles further up the Firth of Forth than Leith, the Port of Edinburgh) was actually many feet higher than the High-water mark at Leith, the action of the tide in Estuaries might have been expected to attract notice, especially as the Estuary of the Severn furnishes a striking instance of the up-hill rush of the Tidal wave in a narrowed channel. But the practical knowledge of the Tides has hitherto advanced so little, that a Circular Letter of Instructions to the several Custom House Officers stationed around the Coast of Great Britain, would produce more information in three months than is at present accessible. A rare instance of valuable knowledge within our reach, hitherto unaccountably slighted in a nation justly priding itself on the higher branches of nautical Science.

(3) The length of the English Mile is as Six to Seven, compared with the Geographical Mile, and its Area being exactly as Three to Four of the Area of the Square Geographical Mile, it is readily reducible to the only Measure which is universal in the civilized world.

space more than Three Miles in circuit, about 370 Acres in Area. The Walls of London are of Roman foundation, probably of the age of Constantius Chlorus, [A. D. 400.] and have been traced through the enlarged Tower of London (a Norman Fortress) behind the Minories to Ald-gate; behind Hounds-ditch (the ancient Moat) to Bishops-gate; and along London Wall to Cripple-gate, the greatest distance from the River Thames. Thence to Alders-gate, New-gate, (4) Lud-gate, and Blackfriars Bridge, where now is concealed Fleet Ditch, the Western defence of the City. The Population crowded within the Walls for the sake of security, would now be justly deemed excessive, as was proved by frequent pestilence and an unusual rate of mortality at all times; but the great Fire which consumed more than the entire City within the Walls in the year 1666, seems to have precluded pestilence in the renovated City.

In the beginning of the last Century the Population was not much less than 140,000, as proved by deduction from the Parish Registers; and the Annual Mortality was as one to Twenty of that Population. Fortunately for the health of the Citizens, space is become more valuable for Warehouses than for human habitation, so that the Population of the City within the Walls is diminished to 55,778, and the rate of Mortality to less than one in Forty.

2. The City of LONDON without the Walls has been acquired by successive Royal grants of Jurisdiction; the main part of it extends westward to Temple-Bar, constituting the best-built part of the Town in the Reigns of the Plantagenets. The space occupied by the City without the Walls, is more than 230 acres; its appearance on the Map has been lessened by colouring the great breadth of the City Moat, which (for example) occupied the space between Houndsditch and Camomile-Street, Devis-Marks, and Duke's-Place,—the Line of the City Wall; and a similar space West of the Minories, extending to the Street in front of the Crescent and of America Square. Throughout its circuit this Moat is said to have been Two hundred feet wide, abounding with Fish. The Population of this portion of the Metropolis was about 69,000 at the beginning of the last Century, it now amounts to 66,209.

3. The Borough of SOUTHWARK on the South side of the River Thames is next to be described. Its origin cannot but be ascribed to the Ferry, which in Roman times connected London with the Military Road to Dover. Southwark. The first attack on the Bridge having failed, Olaf proceeded to fit his Ships with a Bulwark, and under this cover, fastened them to the legs of the tressels, or timber supports of the Bridge; when his Rowers, taking advantage of the current, tore away the middle of it, and the Danes were in consequence subdued. A few years afterwards Canute invaded England and attempted to pass the repaired Bridge, but due precaution had been used in re-constructing it, and Canute was driven to the necessity of digging a Canal and passing his fleet outside of the Southwark fortress. (7) Olaf afterwards became King of Norway and a Convert to Christianity, and was killed by his pagan subjects; in process of time he was sainted, and a Church in Southwark near the Bridge is named after him in Memorial of his successful attack on the Danes.

The Borough of Southwark has been repeatedly granted to the City of London, of which it forms the Bridge-ward-without; but the jurisdiction of the City has always been resisted in the Borough, and the connection of the two places is confined to mere formality. The Southwark Parishes (including the Parish of Christ Church) cover about 600 acres. This Parish was formerly part of St. Saviour's Parish, under the name of Paris Garden Manor, or Bear-Garden, as being the place where those animals were baited for rude amusement. A Church was built in the year 1630, and the Parish was regularly constituted by Act of Parliament in the year 1670. It cannot but remain as much a part of Southwark as before, but

(7) These two attempts on London Bridge usually remain unmentioned in our History, because they have been confounded together, notwithstanding the absurdity of supposing that Canute dug a canal when he had removed the obstacle which rendered such canal necessary. Moreover the Danes were defendants in the first, assailants in the second. The first attempt succeeded, the second failed; nor in the opinion of the best Critics in Danish History, did Olaf ever co-operate with Canute. The Narrative of these remarkable instances of Military resource must henceforth take a place in our History; and as they involve the earliest mention of a Bridge over the Thames are here quoted at length.

The attack by Olaf is found in Snorre, who supports his Narrative by contemporary War Songs: 'Deinceps in Angliam vela fecit Olavus Haraldī filius. Hoc eodem tempore in Anglia cum legionibus suis erat Sveno Teugoskegg, Daniæ rex, qui hoc regnum diutius tunc quaquaversum populando deprædandoque infestaverat; rege interim Adalredo e regno suo ejecto, ac peregre in Vallandia exulanti. Cum in Angliam appulisset Olavus, rumor increbuit, regem Svenonem Haraldī filium, morbo subitaneo correptum, vitâ excessisse. Hujus rei cum certior factus esset Adalredus Angliæ rex, quâ poterat celeritate in regnum reversus est; mox vero amplis propositis, præmiis atque stipendiis sub suis vexillis militaturos conduxit. Confluentibus autem ad ipsum pluribus, ei quoque sese addixit Olavus cum legione Normandicâ. Hi ad urbem Londinum primum contententes, in fluvio Tamesi sese sistebant. Dani autem urbem occupaverant. Est ab altera parte amnis propugnaculum validissimum, vulgo dictum Sudvirkium, quod fossa et aggere multoque milite præsidario huic imposito, munierant Dani. Hoc cum omnibus copiis suis odoriebatur Adalredus, sed conatu irritato, cum valide propelleretur a Danis. Erat vero fluvio Tamesi superstructus pons præaltus, qui urbem, et ab altera parte propugnaculum conjungebat, tantæ quidem latitudinis, ut quadrigæ inter se occurrentes sine periculo commeari possent. A pontis lateribus binis parietinæ inædificatæ erant, quæ umbilicum tenus propugnatores tegere poterant. Pons vero ipse palis, i. e. columnis ligneis, in amne dispositis sustentabatur. Itaque inchoatâ jam pugnâ, ponti insistebat exercitus Danicus, eoque pro clypeo muroque utebatur. Tum rex Adalredus animo agitabat, ut pontem caperet expugnaretque. Itaque convocatis ad consilium ducibus, de expugnando ponte deliberat. Ibi Olavus cum militibus suis experimentum pro viribus facturum se pollicetur, dummodo ad pontem propius movere velint copiarum duces reliqui. Ad quod audendum sua studia promptitudinemque singuli deferunt. Rex Olavus lignea tabulata ex asseribus trabibusque compacta navibus suis imponi curavit, quæ sudibus longis procerisque innixa, commode subiri, tectique his milites hostium vim propulsare potuerunt. Paratâ jam ad pugnam classe, ordine adnavigant naves; verum magno cum impetu tela missiliaque in subeuntes ex ponte propellentes hostes, scuta clypeosque frangebant, multumque damni classi intulerunt, ut se seducere cogeretur. Cæterum Olavus cum turmis suis prope pontem inherens, fanibus prævalidis fulcra pontis cinxit, remissisque remigio subito navibus et flumine secundo, sustentacula diruebat. Quoniam vero milite armisque gravioribus onerabatur pons, dissolutis fulcris, in aquam ruebant plurimi, alii fugâ sibi consulentes, partim in urbem partim in Sudvirkium se receperunt. Deinceps munimentum Sudvirkium oppugnatum occupatumque est. Videntes itaque cives amnem Tamesium hostium patere navibus, aditumque ipsis dari ad interiores regni provincias, sibi hostilem impetum extimescendum rati sunt, ideoque urbem ac se ipsos bonâ cum voluntate et libenter regi Adalredo in manus tradunt.' Snorre, vol. 1. pp. 383, 4. Torfœus, pars tertia, c. 17, repeats this Narrative, and proceeds to prove that Olaf never acted with Canute.

The brief but distinct account of Canute's Canal is in the Saxon Chronicle: 'Interim venerunt naves Canuti ad Grenwic circa Ambervalia, (Rogation Week) et intra modicum tempus perrexerunt ad Lundene, et foderunt ibi magnam scrobem ab australi parte, traxeruntque suas naves in occidentalem plagam pontis, atque post hæc obsiderunt urbem, ut nulli liceret ingredi aut egredi; frequenter item in urbem impetum fecerunt, verum cives fortiter resisterunt.'—Saxon Chronicle by Gibson, p. 148.

The Stone Bridge on the same spot was not completed till A. D. 1209, in the Reign of King John, seemingly imitated from the similar Bridge at Rouen, built by his Grandmother, the Empress Matilda, which remained in use above 400 years. Bridges of this construction may be repaired and improved indefinitely. That over the Thames at London was surpassed in convenience by no modern Bridge after the removal of the houses which stood on it formerly, and the formation of a spacious Middle Arch, in the Year 1762, 3.

but does not possess the elective franchise. In fact the new Parish was a place of little consideration, until ready access to it and through it was opened by the completion of Blackfriars Bridge in 1766; even after that time new houses stood unfinished, until the Bridge Toll (except the Sunday Toll) was finally relinquished in 1785. The Population of Southwark was 45,000 at the beginning of the last century; at present, it amounts to 91,500.

4. The City of WESTMINSTER is an important part of the Metropolis. Edward the Confessor, induced by the reputed sanctity of the place, refounded the Abbey Church, and built his Palace on the site of the present House of Lords (in Old Palace Yard), and William Rufus added to it Westminster Hall, (in New Palace Yard), which became the fixed seat of Justice.

The Exchequer of Receipt (the antient Crown Revenue Office), was removed from Winchester to Westminster, probably in the Reign of King Stephen; and from the time of Edward I., Westminster, from Parliament being usually summoned to meet there, may be deemed the Seat of Government also. Its situation was on a River Island, one Mile and a half long, formed by a side stream of the Thames and affording solid ground in the vicinity of the Abbey. The Chelsea Water-works, the Grosvenor Canal, and the ornamental water in St. James's Park, mark the limits of Thorney Island, the North-east end of which became the City of Westminster. Beyond this natural boundary, the City has been increased by the addition of a larger jurisdiction under the name of the Liberty of Westminster. The Court of the Tudors was removed from the New Palace adjoining Westminster Hall to White-Hall, and a Line of Houses of the Nobility occupied the Strand of the River Thames quite to the Temple, where the Garden and Buildings still exhibit an agreeable remnant of the appearance of this part of the River side in the reign of Elizabeth. At that time the Roads did not admit of dignified land conveyance, and as the Court moved from Whitehall to Richmond or Greenwich by water, the nobles studied convenience as well as splendor in their grand barges, such as are still retained in use for City magnificence, when the several Companies proceed in state to Westminster Hall.

The antient Parish of the City of Westminster is that of St. Margaret's, now called St. Margaret's and St. John's, from a new Church consecrated in A. D. 1728. In the Liberty of Westminster, St. Martin's in the Fields is the Mother Church of St. Paul Covent Garden (A. D. 1645) of St. Anne Soho (A. D. 1678) of St. James's (A. D. 1684) and of St. George Hanover Square (A. D. 1724); St. Mary-le-Strand and St. Clement Danes are antient Parishes connecting Westminster with the City of London. The population of Westminster was 130,000 at the beginning of the last century; at present it amounts to 202,050.

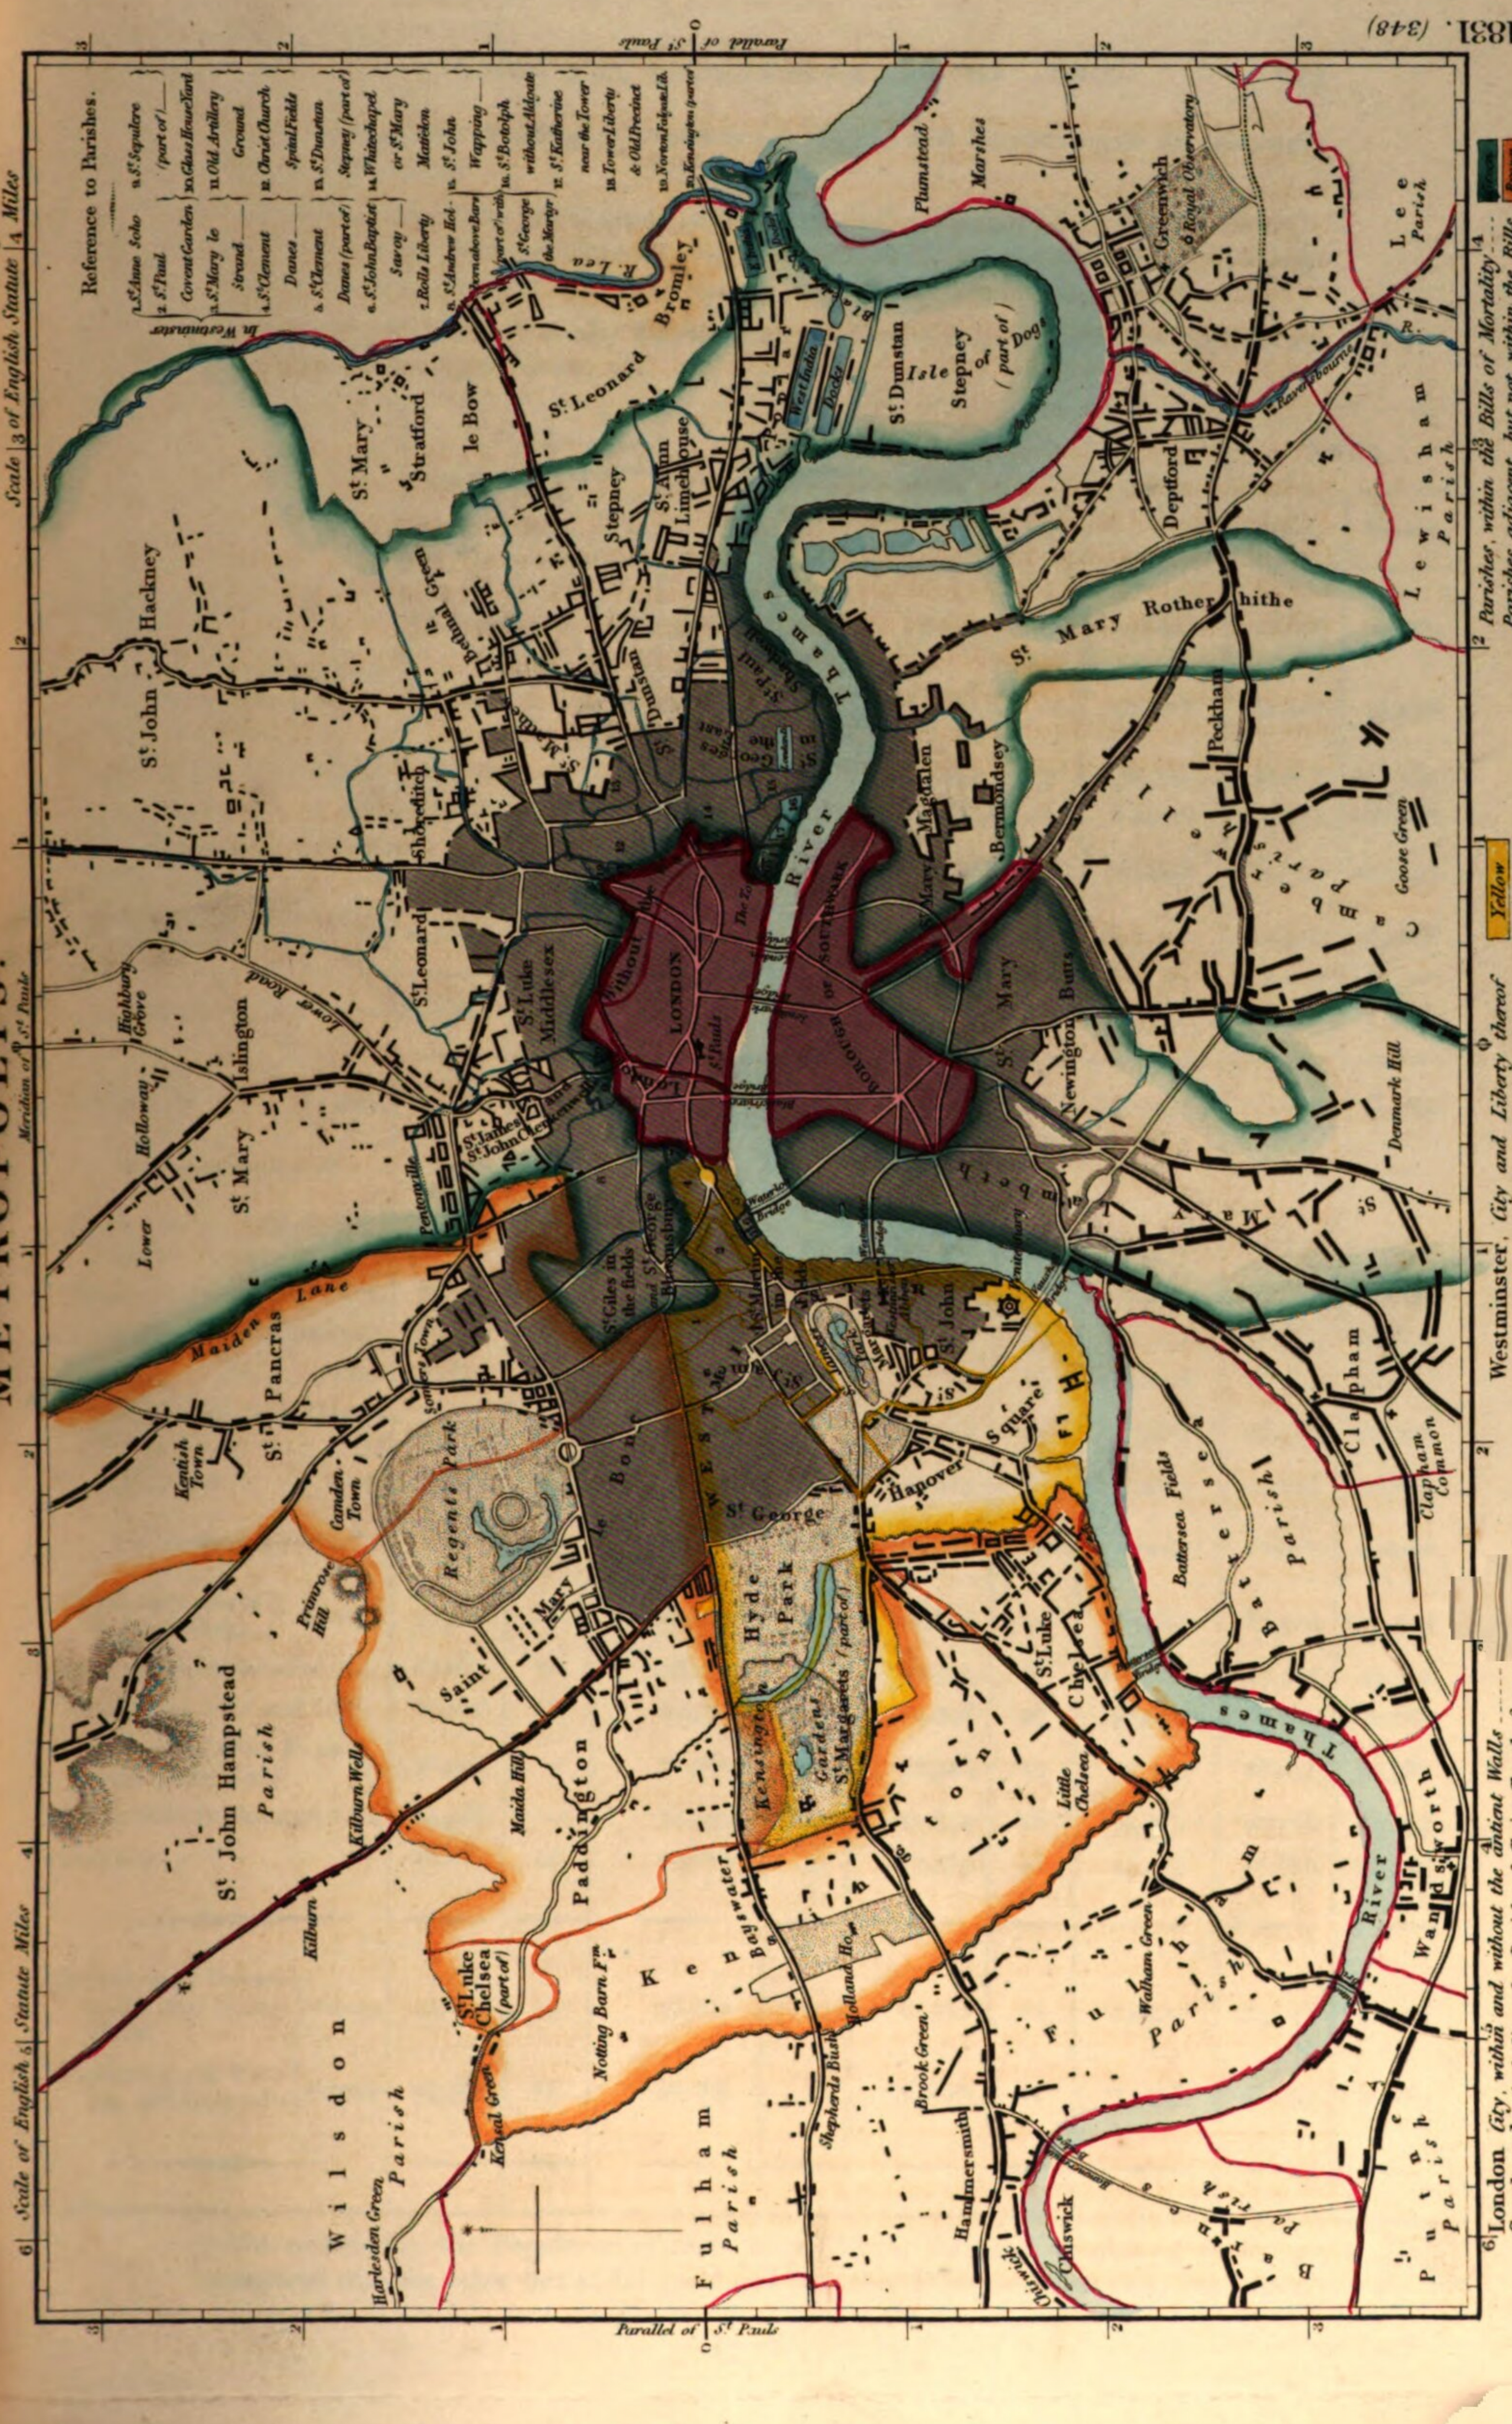

5. The BILLS OF MORTALITY from which the Fifth Division of the Metropolis is designated, require some explanation. London used always to suffer heavily from the plague, and in the great pestilence, which originating in the East in 1345, reached England in 1348, it seems well established that 100,000 persons died and were buried in the City. (8) In 1563 above 20,000 persons died of the plague; in 1592 above 15,000; and in 1603 more than 36,000. This frequent recurrence caused the establishment of Notices, called Weekly Bills of Mortality, which were kept and published by the Parish Clerks, as a warning to the Court and to others to leave London whenever the plague became more fatal than usual. In the year 1625, above 35,000 persons died of the Plague, in the year 1636 above 10,000, and 68,596 persons died in the last great plague of 1665. The conflagration which destroyed the whole City occurred in 1666, after which the plague languished, and finally disappears from the Bills of Mortality in 1679. The somewhat obsolete names of diseases in these Bills, have injured their reputation, and in some of the large Parishes they are discontinued. The Population of this Division of the Metropolis was 326,000 in the beginning of the last Century; it now amounts to 760,000.

6. A few Parishes NOT WITHIN THE BILLS OF MORTALITY, but adjoining the Metropolis, form the last Division; and as the increase of the Population of the Metropolis mainly depends on its extension over these Parishes, it is not surprising that although in the beginning of the last Century they contained only 9,150 persons, they now contain 293,560.

The

(8) It is said that by far the greater part of mankind were swept away by this Indian pestilence, which ravaged Asia, Africa and Europe in succession. Joshua Barnes, in his Life of Edward III. [pp. 428—442] seems to have collected all the truth and all the exaggeration which reached posterity on this subject. From the indisputable fact, that few persons of rank or condition died, it may be inferred, either that wholesome diet, sufficient clothing, and personal cleanliness operated as preservatives against this disease, or that the alleged mortality is enormously exaggerated, although that in London is supported by circumstantial evidence which appears to be conclusive.

In considering the Population of these large Towns, the small number of Males as compared with the other Sex at Liverpool and the other Ports, is remarkable; but admits of of explanation from the proportion of Males excluded from enumeration as being British Seamen, belonging to Registered Vessels (a class of Men amounting to 130,000), or migratory foreign Seamen. Whether the same addition may be made to the general Population of Ports (where, be it observed, the Burials of Males equal or exceed the Burials of Females) as has been made to that of the Metropolis, is left for consideration; in the Naval Arsenals of Plymouth and Portsmouth, the respective Garrisons and Sailors serving in the Royal Navy, as well as those in Registered Shipping, cannot but cause a preponderance of Male Population. An equality in the numbers of the two Sexes would assign 85,000 Inhabitants to Plymouth and 70,000 to Portsmouth.

The increased duration of life in England is a phenomenon which has attracted more notice abroad than at home, (11) but seems now to be generally admitted by those who have studied the subject with the best means of arriving at a well-founded conviction. (12) From the Parish-Register Returns of the Decennary years of the greater part of the last Century (1700-1780) which vary from one death in 31 to one death in 42, is deduced as an average rate

This Table differs from preceding calculations in adverting to the Burials of the last Five Years of each period, viz. 1796-1800; 1806-1810; 1816-1820; 1826-1830; not only for the sake of comparing the number of Burials more nearly with the Population ascertained at the end of such quinquennial periods, but as leaving the intermediate periods of Five Years open to a similar or supplementary scrutiny, if deemed expedient hereafter. The comparative duration of life in each County at various periods is the indisputable result of rate of Mortality, i. e. one Death in Thirty-seven or Thirty-eight of the then existing Population. This becomes one in 45 in the year 1790; one in 48 in 1800; one in 54 in 1810; and one in 60 in England and Wales in the Ten Years preceding 1820.

But in considering these remarkable results, as well as in making deductions from the following Table, be it remembered that the comparative, not the absolute mortality, can only be relied on, unless the Enquirer knows with what degree of accuracy the Burials of any County or other limited district appear in the Parish-Registers. In the Metropolis about 8,000 Burials are thus deficient; in Manchester 4,000; and other populous places labour under the same defect; in what degree, remains for investigation in the larger Abstract. Many of the Returns already received advert to the subject, and afford valuable information.

The following Table will explain itself sufficiently, if its Columns are read with a few preliminary words, such as (for example) in the case of Essex,—“One burial in each 44 of the Population of 1800 (226,437);” or One Forty-fourth part of the said Population was buried in the year. The proportion of Baptisms and of Marriages to the Population is in like manner inserted, to show in what degree they are affected by the Rate of Mortality, and for the general purposes of Statistical Enquiry.

of the present Table; and a further enquiry has been instituted as regarding parts of each County,—Parish-Register limits of convenient dimensions having been formed for this purpose by the junction of Hundreds or similar Divisions. Essex has been selected as a specimen of the manner in which this sort of information may be brought under the eye without confusion, [See Map, p. 18] and because in that County the improvement of health in the Marsh Districts is well exemplified. Camden's description of habitual disease in the Marshes from Barking to Tilbury, is now become inapplicable; and even the Eastern “Hundreds of Essex” will be seen to have rivalled the rest of the County in healthfulness during one of the quinquennial periods. It was impossible to calculate and arrange the foregoing Table, without remarking the excess of Mortality which falls upon the Decennary years, especially on 60 and 70; which are regularly double in amount, as compared to the preceding year and to the succeeding year. Hence the tendency to speak in round numbers may be estimated with considerable accuracy; one person in Four who dies at 59 and 61, at 69 and 71, being thereby transferred to 60 and 70; so that in Twelve Burials, one is subtracted from each Four who die on each side of 60 and 70, and added to the Four who really die at 60 and 70.

It would be improper and even liable to censure, were this subject to be dismissed without noticing that it is held to be of importance in the application of a Table of Mortality, that the actual Population of every Year throughout the period embraced in such Table should be known; whence it may be desirable in this place to exhibit the approximation obtainable in Essex, by due application of the Parish-Register Returns.

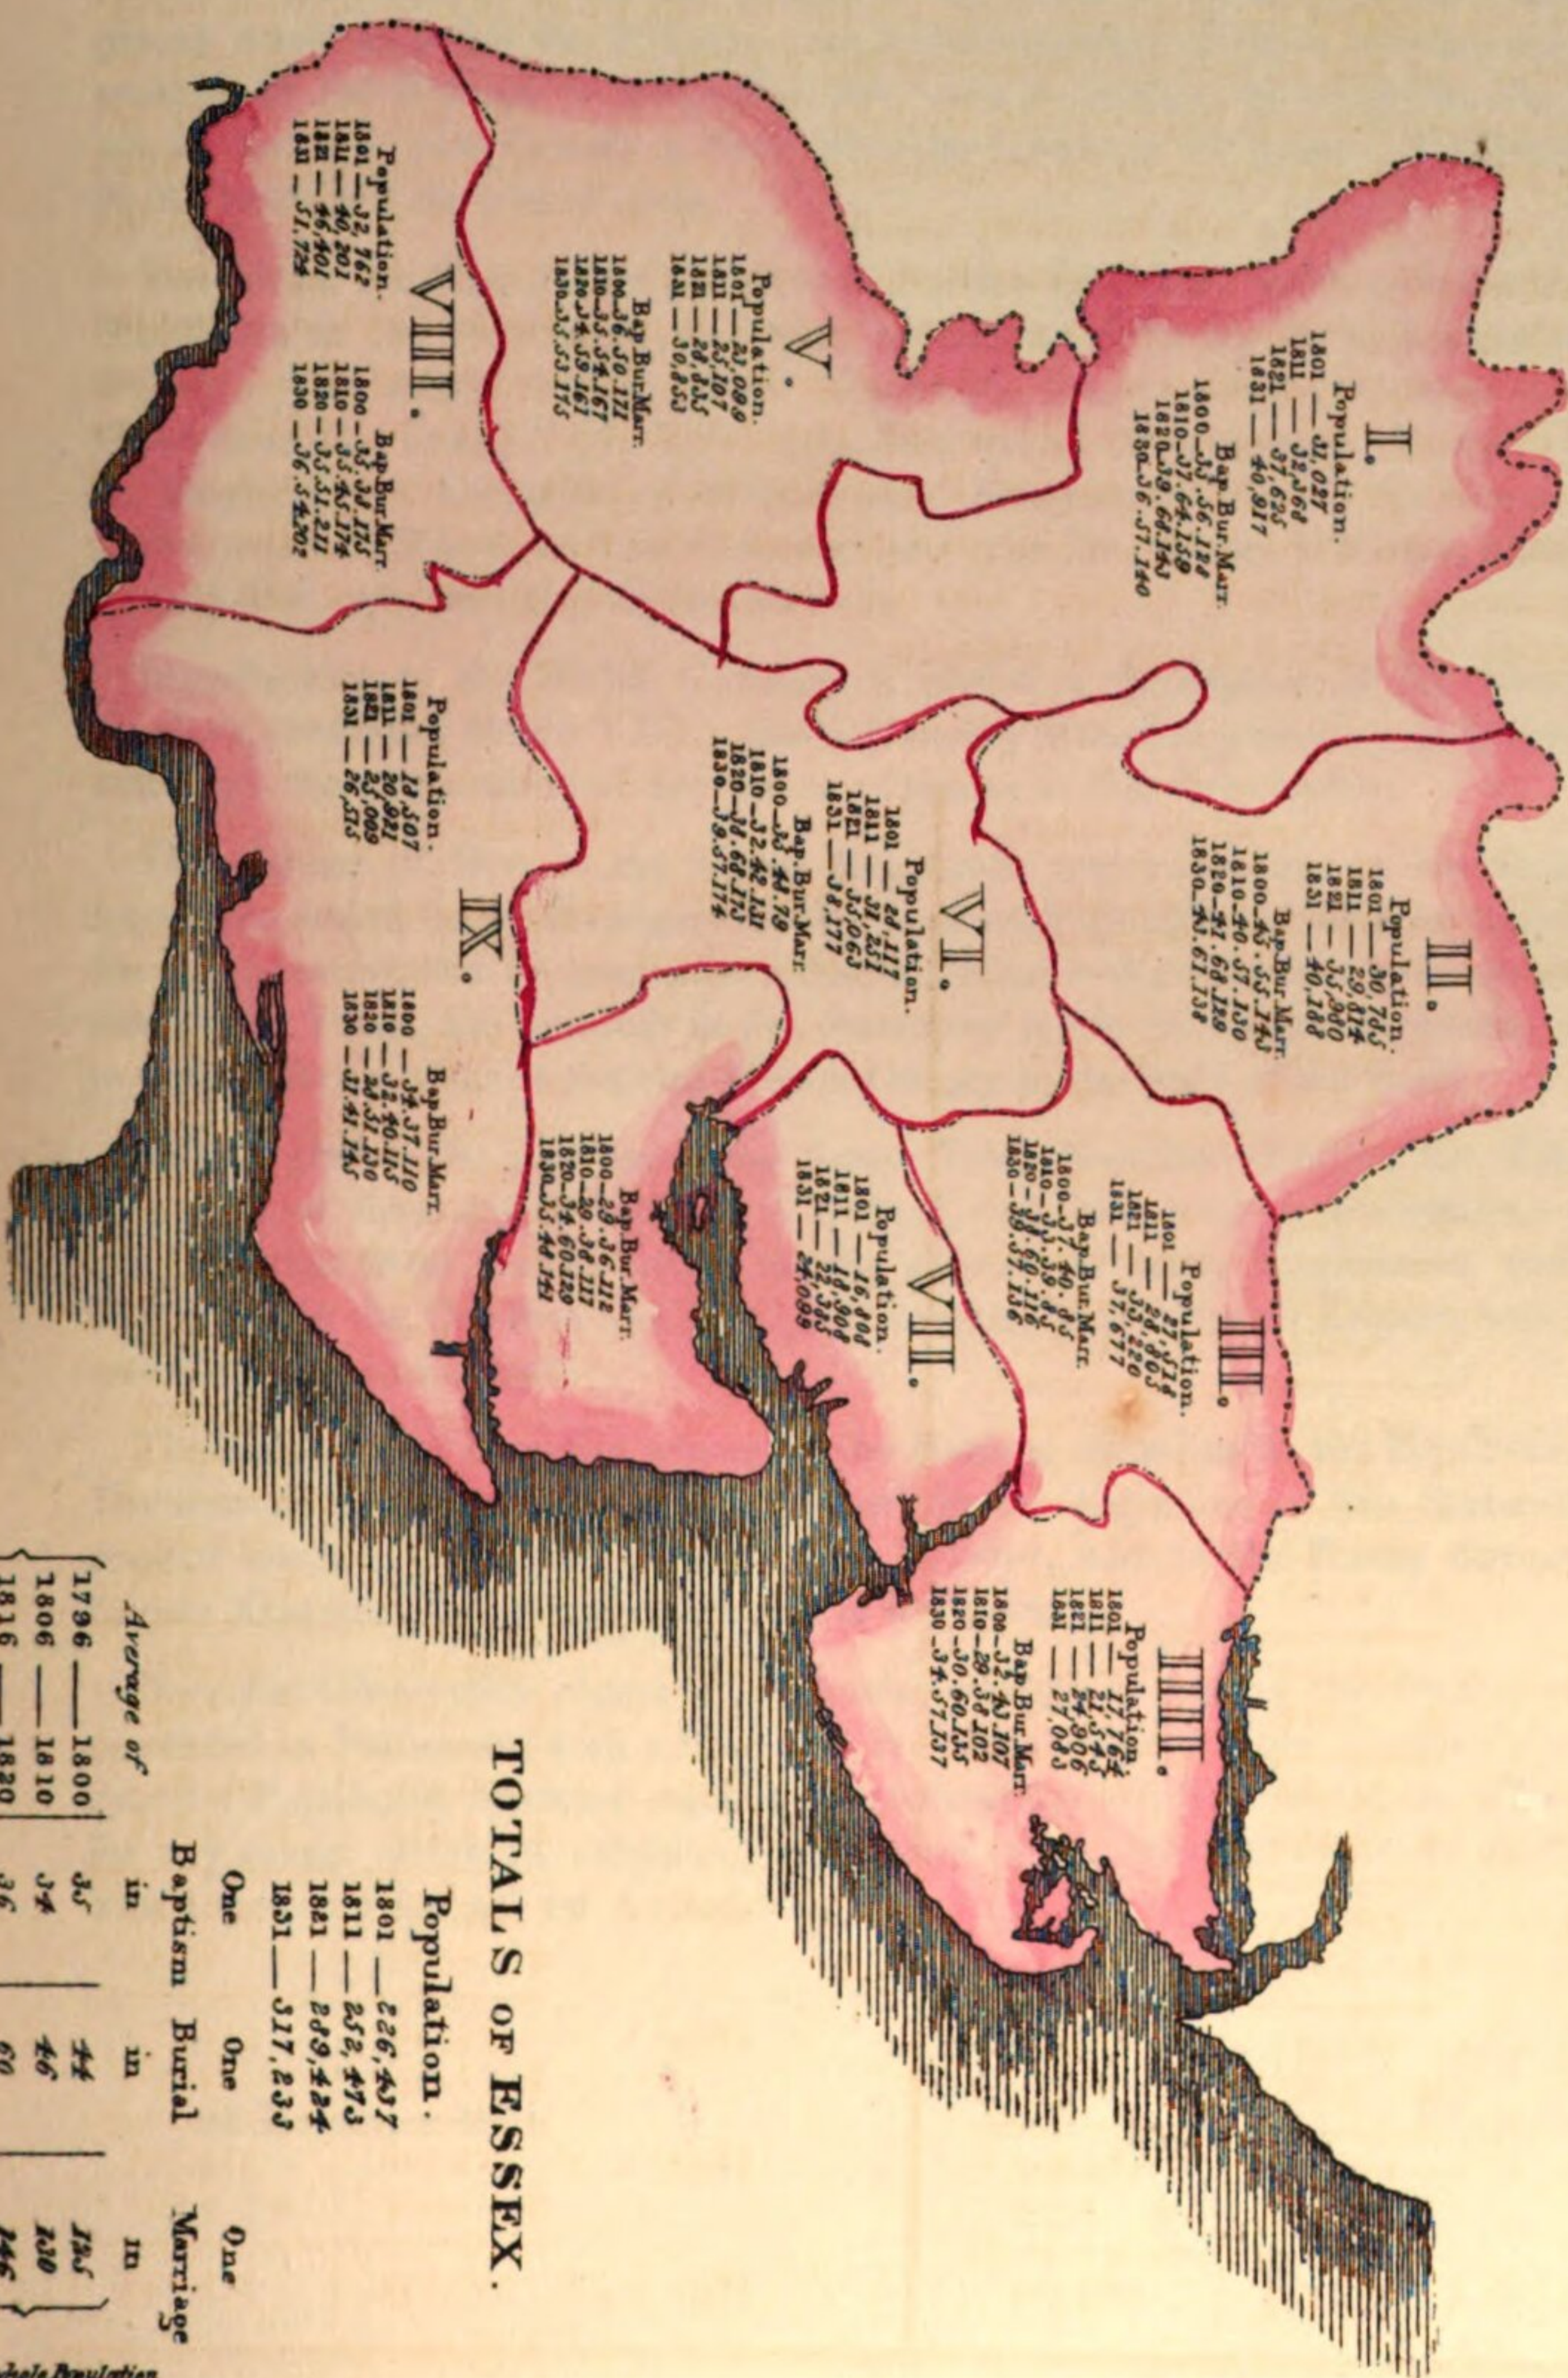

The Population of Essex, according to the Enumeration of 1811, was 252,473; according to the Enumeration of 1821, it had increased to 289,424; and it is now become 317,233. Therefore in the interval of Ten Years, from 1811 to 1821, the Population had increased 36,951; in which interval the Baptisms exceeded the Burials by 31,725, so that the actual increase of each year will be indicated by adding $16\frac{1}{2}\%$ Cent to the increased Population resulting from the comparison of Baptisms and Burials. From 1821 to 1831, the Population had increased 27,809; while the excess of Baptisms beyond the number of the Burials was 29,792; so that the actual Increase will be nearly ascertained, by deducting 7% Cent from the Increase indicated by the Parish-Register Returns; or, more accurately, by application of the Rule of Proportion. The Result is exhibited in the following Table, which in a parallel Column shows the approximation obtainable (had no Parish Registers existed) by adding rather less than one 73^d part annually to the Population from 1811 to 1821; rather more than a 108th part annually to the Population from 1821 to 1831; these rival Columns seldom differ above 1,000, or one-part in about Three Hundred; so that the Parish-Register Increase is not likely to come into use, unless on consideration of the greater degree of facility with which it may be obtained.

The American Medical Association is a non-profit corporation organized for the purpose of promoting the interests of the medical profession and the public. It was organized in 1847 and has since that time been the leading organization of the medical profession in the United States. The Association is composed of more than 50,000 members, who are physicians, surgeons, dentists, and other medical practitioners. The Association's principal activities are the publication of the Journal of the American Medical Association, the holding of annual meetings, and the advocacy of the interests of the medical profession and the public.

The Association's Journal is one of the most important and influential medical journals in the world. It is published weekly and contains a large amount of original research, clinical reports, and reviews. The Journal is read by physicians and other medical practitioners throughout the world. The Association's annual meetings are also one of its principal activities. These meetings are held in different parts of the country each year and attract thousands of physicians and other medical practitioners from all over the United States and other countries.

The Association's advocacy work is also one of its principal activities. It represents the medical profession in its relations with the government, the public, and other organizations. It has been successful in many of its efforts to improve the medical profession and the public. For example, it has been successful in securing the passage of laws which regulate the practice of medicine and the sale of drugs. It has also been successful in securing the passage of laws which improve the medical education of physicians and other medical practitioners.

The Association's work is also carried on through its various departments and committees. These departments and committees are responsible for the Association's various activities. For example, the Department of Publications is responsible for the publication of the Journal and other publications. The Department of Education is responsible for the Association's educational work. The Department of Advocacy is responsible for the Association's advocacy work. The Association's work is also carried on through its various branches and sections. These branches and sections are responsible for the Association's work in different parts of the country and in different medical specialties.

The Association's work is also carried on through its various committees and subcommittees. These committees and subcommittees are responsible for the Association's work in different areas. For example, the Committee on Medical Education is responsible for the Association's work in the field of medical education. The Committee on Medical Practice is responsible for the Association's work in the field of medical practice. The Committee on Medical Research is responsible for the Association's work in the field of medical research.

A Statement of progress in the Population Inquiry having now been given in conformity with the order of Parliament, it remains only to advert to the following Comparative Account of the Population, to which are prefixed for occasional reference, the Questions addressed to the Overseers in England and the Schoolmasters in Scotland;—and subjoined to it is a Summary of the Population of the several Counties of England, Wales, and Scotland. In the adjustment of this Summary of Counties, a difficulty occurs, from the existence of Cities and Towns which are Counties of themselves, but which have always been arranged as part of the larger County in which they are locally situate. But the City of Bristol is locally interposed between two Counties; and although Four-Fifths of it is on the Gloucestershire side of the River Avon, it is classed in the Return Book of the House of Commons with the Somersetshire Boroughs; but in the Population Volumes always with Gloucestershire.

The City of York presents a greater difficulty; it is central in regard to the several Ridings of that great County, each of which Ridings is for most purposes considered as a County. York City has always been placed with the East-Riding, without any assignable reason of preference; so has the Liberty of St. Peter of York, a peculiar jurisdiction over places scattered in all the Ridings. As, in consequence of these misplacements, the proportion of the Ridings to each other has been inconveniently withheld, the City is now placed distinctly as a County of itself, while the Liberty of St. Peter is distributed according to the locality of its several parts.

Ten Cities are Counties of themselves; besides LONDON, which includes the County of Middlesex in its Sherifffdom, and thus creates no difficulty in its connection with that County. The others are as follow: BRISTOL, CANTERBURY, COVENTRY, EXETER, GLOUCESTER, LICHFIELD, LINCOLN, NORWICH, WORCESTER, YORK. Five Towns in England are Counties of themselves: Kingston-on-HULL, NEWCASTLE-on-Tyne, NOTTINGHAM, POOL, and SOUTHAMPTON; also Two Towns in Wales, CAERMARTHEN County-Borough, and HAVERFORDWEST.

Introductory to the Welsh Counties is placed a description of the formation of the Border Counties by Henry VIII.; also a Glossary of such significant appellatives as usually enter into the composition of the names of places in that Principality.

The number of Men in the Militia Regiments under training on the 30th May 1831, have been added in the Summary to the resident Population of their respective Counties; for which reason, and because a few other additions and corrections have occurred on revision of the Totals, the numbers in the Summary are to be deemed authentic in preference to those which appear at the end of each County in the body of the work.

With regard to the insertion of the Army, Navy, Merchant Seamen, &c. if it be objected that some of them are attributable to Ireland, and that some are Foreigners,—the Answer must be, that these are balanced by the absence of many Englishmen and Scotsmen, sojourners in the Colonies and Foreign Dominions of the British Empire, with intention to return to their native land.

The necessity for hereafter arranging the Returns according to the Hundreds and similar Divisions in each County, has been noticed in the beginning of this Statement; and for present use the Population of every such Division, and of the Towns distinctly given in former Abstracts, is inserted at the end of the Volume.

No other Observation occurs of importance enough to prolong this Statement; and it is presented to Parliament with a hope that the same pressure of the occasion which has produced a Population Abstract somewhat prematurely, will be deemed an allowable excuse for any casual errors in exhibiting an Outline of the principal results of 28,000 Returns, which were not due till 1st August last.

31 December 1831.

QUESTIONS addressed to the OVERSEERS in England, and the SCHOOLMASTERS in Scotland :

1st.—How many inhabited Houses are there in your Parish, Township or Place ; and by how many Families are they occupied ?

2d.—How many Houses are now building, and therefore not yet inhabited ?

3d.—How many other Houses are uninhabited ?

4th.—What Number of Families in your Parish, Township, or Place are chiefly employed in and maintained by Agriculture ; or by Trade, Manufacture, or Handicraft ; and how many Families are not comprised in either of the Two preceding Classes ?

N. B. The total Number of Families in answer to this Question must correspond with the Number of Families in answer to the First Question ; and if any doubt shall arise as to the Class in which any Family or Families ought to be comprised, such Doubt is to be stated as a Remark, not omitting therein to specify in which Class such Family or Families may have been comprised in your Answer to the Fourth Question.

5th.—How many Persons (including Children of whatever Age) are there actually found within the Limits of your Parish, Township, or Place, at the time of taking this Account, distinguishing Males and Females,* and exclusive of Men actually serving in His Majesty's Regular Forces, or in the Militia, and exclusive of Seamen, either in His Majesty's Service, or belonging to registered Vessels ?

* Every Female Servant must be again entered under Question 13th.

6th.—How many of the Males enumerated in answer to the 5th Question are upwards of Twenty Years old ?

N. B. If this Number of Males upwards of Twenty Years old should differ materially [or otherwise, as compared to the Return of 1821] from One Half of the total Number of Males [in answer to Question 5th], some Error has probably been committed, and the Answer to this Question should be examined, and corrected, if necessary.

[§ In the Year 1821, the Number of Males in Great Britain returned as being upwards of Twenty Years of age, as also the Number of those under that age, somewhat exceeded 3,000,000 ; but in the City of London and other parts of the Metropolis generally the Number of Males upwards of Twenty Years of age preponderated ; in other places, wherever the increase of Population has been unusually rapid, a contrary Result may be anticipated.]

7th.—How many Males upwards of Twenty Years old are employed in Agriculture, including Graziers, Cowkeepers, Shepherds and other Farm Servants, Gardeners (not taxed or taxable as Male Servants), and Nurserymen ?

In answering this Question, you will carefully distinguish these Males into three Classes ; viz. First, Occupiers of Land who constantly employ and pay One or more than One Labourer or Farm Servant in Husbandry ; Secondly, Occupiers of Land who employ no Labourer other than of their own Family ; Thirdly, Labourers in Husbandry and Farm Servants employed by Occupiers of the First Class.

8th.—How many Males upwards of Twenty Years old are employed in Manufacture or in making Manufacturing Machinery ; but not including Labourers in Warehouses, Porters, Messengers, &c. who are to be included in a subsequent Class ? [Question 11th.]

9th.—How many Males upwards of Twenty Years old are employed in Retail Trade or in Handicraft, as Masters, Shopmen, Journeymen, Apprentices, or in any Capacity requiring Skill in the Business ; but not including Labourers, Porters, Messengers, &c. who are to be included in a subsequent Class ?

N. B. To enable you to answer this Question in a Manner satisfactory to yourself, a Half Sheet [Formula, No. 2.] containing a List of the Denominations of several Trades, is transmitted herewith, with blank Spaces and Lines for Entry of the Answers you obtain ; (it being understood that if any Trade or Business carried on in your Parish or Place does not appear in the printed List, you will specify such Trade at Bottom of the said List,) making a mark for each Male opposite to the Denomination of his proper Trade or Business, and adding all together for final Entry in the Schedule ; to which Schedule you will annex the said printed List, with your original Entries thereon.

10th.—How many Males upwards of Twenty Years old are * Wholesale Merchants, Bankers, Capitalists, Professional Persons, Artists, Architects, Teachers, Clerks, Surveyors, and other Educated Men ? And in answering this Question, you will include generally Persons maintaining themselves otherwise than by Manufacture, Trade or bodily Labour ?

[* A Retailer sells to the Consumer the Article sold.]

11th.—How many Males upwards of Twenty Years old are Miners, Fishermen, Boatmen, Excavators of Canals, Road Makers, Toll Collectors, or Labourers employed by Persons of the Three preceding Classes, [Questions 8th, 9th, 10th,] or otherwise employed in any Kind of bodily Labour, excepting in Agriculture ? Labourers in Agriculture having been already entered in the proper place.

12th.—How many other Males upwards of Twenty Years old (not being taxable Servants under the next Question) have not been included in any of the foregoing Classes ? Including, therefore, in answer to this Question, retired Tradesmen, Superannuated Labourers, and Males diseased or disabled in Body or Mind.

13th.—How many Household Servants, including all Female Servants, and such Male Servants (of whatever Age) as are taxed or taxable as such ; also Waiters and Attendants at Inns ; distinguishing the Males upwards of Twenty Years of Age from the Males under Twenty Years of Age ?

N. B. Observe that the Number of Males, in answer to Questions 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 11th 12th and 13th collectively, cannot be less than the Number of Males upwards of Twenty Years old, in answer to Question 6th ; but will exceed that Number in consequence of including Male Servants under 20 Years of Age ; and as a general Rule, always assign an Individual of Mixed Occupation or Income to that by which he is supposed to profit more than by any other.

14th.—If you have entered any Males in answer to the 8th Question, be pleased to specify the Manufacture or Manufactures in which they are employed ; and what Proportion of the Number of those entered in answer to Question 11th are employed in any Quarry, Mines, Coal Pits, Fishery, or public Work now in progress ?

County of Middlesex.

Note.—In the County of Middlesex, the Column of Aggregate Population of connected Places is superseded by occasional Notes to the same effect; and the Annual Value of Real Property in 1828 (as obtained from many Parishes by the Metropolis Police Committee of The House of Commons) is inserted, after correcting the Return of Rateable Property, so as to arrive at the then reputed Annual Value or Rack-Rental, in all cases where the Rack-Rental is not stated.

County of Southampton. (Hants.)

The legal Name of this County is inconvenient, and not in common use, a small County of the same name, annexed to the Town of Southampton, being included in it. In Domesday Book the County at large is called Hantes (Hants); but in the similar Book of Edward I. (Rotuli Hundredorum), it is called Southamtes (whence Hampshire), and thenceforward Southant', as distinguished from Northant' (Northamptonshire.)

Increase of POPULATION in three Periods -		-	21 $\frac{1}{2}$ Cent.	15 $\frac{1}{2}$ Cent.	20 $\frac{1}{2}$ Cent.

THE Population of Leek, in 1821, is stated correctly (in a Note) at 4,855; but being deemed no other than a collective total of Townships, which made Return, is erroneously excluded from the County Total, which therefore should have been 345, 895; and the Increase should be stated at 21 $\frac{1}{2}$ Cent, 17 $\frac{1}{2}$ Cent, 19 $\frac{1}{2}$ Cent, respectively; and will so stand in the Summary of Counties.

County of Suffolk.

(a) Aston Parish, which is entered with Birmingham, includes Deritend Chapelry.

(b) The Annual Value of Atherstone is included with that of Whitchurch Parish.

(c) Barton, Broom, and Marcliff Hamlets are in Bidford Parish.

(d) The Parish of Edgbaston has been reckoned in former Population Volumes as part of Birmingham, but it is thought that Edgbaston ought to be excluded, and the remote parts of the extensive Parish of Aston; leaving three of its Townships, Bordesley, Duddleston with Necholls, and Deritend as suburbs of Birmingham. In this manner the Population of Birmingham is stated at 142,251.

* The Liberty of St. Peter of York consists in a jurisdiction over 52 Townships or parts of Townships in the East Riding; 42 in the North Riding; 26 in the West Riding; and 3 or 4 spots in the City of York: but as few of these places are co-extensive with the Townships in which the Population has always been enumerated by the Overseers of the Poor, any attempt to ascertain it is ineffectual; and has hitherto rendered the Summary of each Riding imperfect, without obtaining any equivalent advantage. Hence the places locally situate in the North-Riding and West-Riding, but within the jurisdiction of St. Peter of York, are now restored to those Ridings, and the City of York and Ainstey appears distinctly; which deductions from the Population heretofore ascribed to the East Riding leaves the results of the enumeration in 1801, 1811, and 1821, as above-stated.

City of York.

The CITY of YORK and AINSTY is not in any of the three Ridings of Yorkshire. It has usually been entered at the end of the East Riding, and there is no occasion to deviate from that practice ; but its Population is now separately stated.

⁽ⁿ⁾ The Township of Sharlston extends into Wragby Parish.^(o) Part of the Township of Foulby, entered in Warmfield Parish, is in the Parish of Wragby.

* The Population ascribed to the West Riding in 1801, 1811, and 1821, is here increased by the addition of two Townships (Brotherton and Ulleshalf) heretofore entered with the East Riding, under the title of the Liberty of St. Peter of York.

Wales.

IN the 27^o Hen. VIII. c. 26 (A. D. 1535) an Act was passed “for Laws and Justice to be ministered in Wales “in like form as it is in this Realm.”

By this Act, the Marches, or intermediate Border Lands between England and Wales, were divided into new Counties, or annexed to old Counties. The new Counties were, MONMOUTH, which became an English County; BRECON, DENBIGH, MONTGOMERY, and RADNOR, in Wales: The English Counties augmented by annexations were, Gloucester, Hereford, and Salop; the Welsh Counties so augmented were, Cardigan, Carmarthen, Glamorgan, Merioneth, and Pembroke.

By the same Act, the Chancellor of England is directed to issue a Commission under the Great Seal, to such persons as to him shall be thought convenient, to enquire and view all the said Shires of Carmarthen, Pembroke, Cardigan, Monmouth, Brecon, Radnor, Montgomery, Glamorgan, and Denbigh; and thereupon to divide them and every of them into so many Hundreds as they shall think most meet and convenient, and the said Hundreds shall certify into the High Court of Chancery; which Hundreds (after the said Certificate) shall be used and taken as other Hundreds be in every other Shire within the Realm of England.

By a subsequent Act of 28^o Hen. VIII. c. 3. Three years are allowed for correction of the Allotment of Places to the several Shires; and by Act of 31^o Hen. VIII. c. 11. Three years further are allowed.

Under the above Commission, and another Commission for enquiry into the Welsh Laws and Customs, certain Ordinances were framed, which were afterwards confirmed; as appears at the end of the Acts of 34^o & 35^o Hen. VIII. where they are entered as an Act of Parliament.

THE AMOUNT of the Population of the County of Merioneth exceeds that ascribed to it in the body of the work, a Return to the amount of 1,047, having since been obtained.

THE TOTAL of the Male Population of the Counties of Denbigh, Glamorgan, Hereford, Kent, Lancaster, Middlesex, Merioneth, Somerset, and Surrey, has been increased by the addition of part of their respective Militias, ascertained to have been under training, and therefore not enumerated on the 30th May 1831; and the Population ascribed to the City of York has been increased by transferring to it a place containing 901 Inhabitants.—Regarding the North Riding of the County of York, it is necessary to mention, that an omission occurs in the Population Abstract of 1811, from an oversight in not carrying over a total. This error (of course) affects the total of Yorkshire, and even the general totals of 1811; all these are corrected throughout the present Volume, this being unavoidable in exhibiting a Comparative Account of the Population of 1801, 1811, 1821, and 1831.

OTHER VARIATIONS of small amount have taken place, from the discovery of duplicate Returns, or from Returns obtained during the progress of the work, so that the numbers of persons as stated in the Summary, is to be deemed authentic, in preference to that which appears at the end of each County; an event anticipated and virtually foretold, by not stating such County totals beyond the nearest round number.

THE Rate of Increase of the Population of Great Britain has not varied much during the last Thirty Years, even when the Increase or Diminution of the Army, Navy, &c. is thus taken into the Calculation; but a more accurate knowledge of the Increase of Population may be obtained by adverting to the Increase of the Female Sex exclusively; thereby virtually omitting throughout the Calculation such of the Army, Navy, and Merchant Seamen as were not domiciled in Great Britain.
